CEMENTING THE UNION .- Among the various plans for preserving the Union, that suggested by Henry C. Spalding & Co., deserves attention. On the 15th instant every member of the House of Representatives at Washington, found on his desk a bottle of prepared glue and the following note: "New York, February, 1860.

"Honored Sir: We beg to present to you a bottle of Spalding's Prepared Glue, with the hope that you will find it useful not only in the humble department of household cementing together our glorious Union, with powerful Machinery, and subjected to a prowhich is being so shaken by sectional passions and interests, and whose preservation is so important to the welfage of civilization and humanity.

At the same time the President, Viceof the Cabinet, Senators, lobby men, editors | sence can be traced for years aferwards. and reporters were also made recipients of this glue and advice. For an hour or two glue and Union were the prevailing topics of thought and conversation at Washington.

DEAD HEADS VS. THE PRESS.—There is so that the following waif, which we find in an obscure corner of one of our distant exchanges, that we must insert it in our columns. Having been a victim ourself, we can appreciate the worth of the sentiments expressed:

Railroads occasionally complain of dead heading, but no institution suffers so much from it as the press. A sensible writer says: "The press endures the infliction of dead headism from the pulpit, the bar and the stage, from corporations, societies and individuals. It is expected to yield its interests, it is required to give strength to weak institutions, eyes to the blind, clothes to the naked, and bread to the hungry; it is asked to cover infirmities, hide weakness, and wink at improprieties; it is expected to herald quacks, bolster up dull authors, and flatter the vain; it is, in short, to do all things to all men; and if it looks for pay or reward, it is denounced as mean and sordid. There is no interest under the whole heavens that is expected to give so much to society without pay or thanks, as the press.""
